LIONS' RODEO JULY 29-30.....

Drayton Valley's Fifth Annual Rodeo, sponsored by the Lions Club, promises to be a bigger and better affair than ever before it has always been a good show. This is the second year the Lions have sponsored the event.

Topflight cowboys will be here for the circuit and Harry Vold's famous Rodeo stock which is rated as some of the best rodeo stock in the business. Some of Mr. Vold's stock was selected to be sent to the Texas International World Championship Show this last spring.

The first three years the Rodeo was held in Drayton Valley it was managed by the Rodeo Association, a group of civic-minded men in this community who put much time and effort and money into the affair. Then the large and enthusiastic Lions Club took it under their wing and had charge of it last year, and again this year, and the indications are that it will become a regular mid-summer community effort on the part of the Lions'.

The Rodeo is held at the Drake Rodeo Grounds, just west of town, on the other side of the highway. The grounds are located on the original Drake homestead, and less than a half mile from the grounds is the original log cabin that served as the first store and post-office for Drayton Valley. Corrals and bleachers have been built at the grounds and each year sees some new addition to the grounds, which are leased from Mrs. Drake. It is expected that Mrs. Drake will be present again this year for the opening day of the Rodeo.

Each year the parade gets longer and more elaborate, with many childrens entries, Oldtimers, civic figures, and industrial and commercial floats. This year there are additional cash prizes for the children's entries, donated by the Hudson's Bay Company.

The cowboys will compete for over $1000. in prize money from the regular Rodeo Circuit, which is C.P.A. approved. The local rodeo is a member of the Central Alberta Stampede Association.

Saddle Bronc Riding will pay $200. First Prize, Bareback Riding will pay $200. First Prize, Calf Roping will also pay $200. Wild Steer Wrestling will pay $900. First Prize money and Brahma Bull Riding and the Cutting Horse Contest will pay the same. Girls' Barrel Racing will pay $80.00 First Prize money.

In addition to these prizes, however, this year a number of local merchants are putting up additional special cash trophies, which will be awarded to winners of the main events.

In the Saddle Bronc Riding event Blocks Store is putting up $100. Matlock and Sons Trucking are putting up $100. for the Bare Back Riding event. For Steer Decorating Vandergrift Sand and Gravel is putting up $100. The Calf Roping event will see an additional $100. prize put up by Mack and Mann Ltd. and the Bareback Riding event winner will be $100. richer from the cash prize trophy put up by Hillcrest Trailer Court.

The calves used in the calf roping events and the cattle used in the Cutting Horse events will be supplied by Les Tucker.

Gayland Shows will provide entertainment on the grounds again this year. Gate fees will be $1.50 for adults and 50¢ for school children, with 25¢ charge for bleacher seats.

Friday, July 29, the first day of the Rodeo has been declared a public holiday in Drayton Valley. The Parade will get under way at twelve noon on Friday and will follow the same route as last year.

There will be a dance on both Friday and Saturday evening in the Curling Rink, with Gaby Haas and his famous orchestra on hand for the music. The wonderful 8 x 15' holiday Trailer shown on the front page will be drawn for on Saturday night.

Staff Photo

This fine 8 x 15' Lad-ee Holiday Trailer, made by Safeway, will be drawn for on July 30th at the Rodeo Dance. The trailer is fully equipped and would be a valuable addition for any family to own.

Parade Route

Those who plan to watch the Parade for the 5th Annual Lions Rodeo in Drayton Valley will have lots of room to line up to see the floats go by.

The parade will form at Calgary Power office as on previous occasions. At the corner of 50th Ave. and 50th Street it will turn NORTH at Valley Dairy, at McFarlands Lumber Yard it will turn WEST past the Hotel, and at Pembina Drug Store will turn SOUTH to Williamson's Store, then it will turn WEST past the cemetery, to Drayton Valley Hot Oil, and then will turn SOUTH again to 50th. Ave. where it will turn WEST again at Oilwell Supply, and continue WEST to Stewart Motors, just across Industrial Road, where it will disband.

Man Killed in Accident

George Robert McLaren, aged 37, died on Monday morning as the result of serious injuries sustained at a rig, near Cynthia. Mr. McLaren received a fractured pelvis on Sunday afternoon, July 17th when he was allegedly caught between a truck and the cat-head of a rig. The accident occured in the Cynthia area.

Dr. Brooks responded to the emergency call and after attending to the badly injured man he took him in his car to the main highway where they picked up a police escort at Evansburg and made the trip to the Royal Alexandria Hospital in Edmonton.

First report stated that the injured man was doing satisfactorily, but a report early Monday morning stated that he had passed away.

He leaves behind him his loving wife, and three small children, a son Douglas, and two daughters, Debbie and Sheryl. He is also survived by seven sisters and two brothers.

Funeral arrangements were made by Andrews-McLaughlin Funeral Chapel, in Edmonton. The body of Mr. McLaren was sent to Rock Haven, Saskatchewan for burial.

Coroner Dr. Brooks has called for an inquest to be held on Thursday, July 28, at 1:00 p.m. The inquest will probably be held in the Council Chambers of the new Town Hall.

Woman Dies of Burns

Mrs. Cora Raudebaugh, 44, passed away as the result of burns received when the Raudebaugh house burned to the ground near Drayton Valley several weeks ago. Following the fire here she was rushed to Royal Alexandria Hospital, but the burns proved fatal and she passed away on July 17th.

As well as her husband, William, she leaves to mourn their loss four sons, Joseph, Wayne, Gerald and Orville and three daughters, Lorraine, Dorothy and Doreen.

Funeral arrangements were made by Andrews-McLaughlin Funeral Chapel, of Edmonton. The body of Mrs. Raudebaugh was sent to Vermillion, and funeral services and interment were at nearby Islay.

Strong opposition to tar sand proposal

The Alberta oil and gas conservation board had another hot one on its hands last week. This time the exploitation of the Athabasca tar sands are at stake as Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. applies for permission to develop the sands.

A number of firms have spent a great deal of time, effort and money in probing the possibilities of extracting economically the reserves of the tar sands which are reputed to be the world's largest. Individuals and companies have worked on almost every imaginable type of process from the use of centrifugal force to the more recent nuclear explosion proposal to find the key to the tar sands lock. Most of these interests are lined up one way or another against Great Canadian.

At the opening session of the hearings June 7, Great Canadian outlined its proposal to the board. It would use a hot water flotation method of extracting the oil in a $110 million project to be erected near Fort McMurray. If the company receives approval, it intends to commence construction this year with completion by the end of 1962. This would allow full scale operation early in 1963.

Prime contractors for the project are Mannix Co. Ltd. of Calgary for a $26 million pipe line from the McMurray plant to Edmonton. Sun Oil Company and Canadian Oil Companies Limited have agreed to take 23,700 and 7,800 barrels daily respectively of desulphurized oil at Edmonton.

Mannix would also be in charge of the construction of the buildings and plant site. Other contractors include a Toronto firm, Link Belt Ltd., and Lubecker Maschinenbau AG, of Germany, have coped the $18 million chunk devoted to mining and conveying equipment. Toronto's M.W. Kellog Ltd. have been chosen to produce the crude at a rate of 11.8 million barrels yearly with a gross market value of some $56 million.

An estimated requirement of 800 men during the construction period and 350 men on permanent staff were also outlined in the application which was read to the director of Great Canadian.

Mr. Clarke is known as an engineer who worked on the "Manhattan project" in the United States which eventually lead to the development of the nuclear explosive principles utilized in the atom bomb.

The most pugnacious of Great Canadian's objectors is Can-Amera Oil Sands Development Ltd., who filed its submission with the board on the second day of the hearings. The submission outlined Can-Amera's objections on the grounds that Great Canadian has not shown that it is able to develop the tar sands on an economical scale, and stated that if the board allowed Great Canadian to undertake the proposed project, it would be "detrimental" to the efficient development of the tar sands.

Can-Amera is also concerned about several aspects of the technical process outlined by Great Canadian and state that some phases of the process may infringe on patent rights presently held by Can-Amera. Can-Amera witnesses were stated to be planning the basis of their testimony to be directly related to the Great Canadian proposal. In essence, Can-Amera stated that the plant outlined by Great Canadian is "uneconomical, ill-conceived and impractical".

The other intervening party is a group of oil companies long associated with research into the development of the tar sands. These include Canada-Cities Service Petroleum Corp., Imperial Oil Limited, Royalite Oil Company and Richfield Oil Corporation. The group did not raise any stated objection during the hearings but their counsel, E.J. Chambers, Q.C., closely questioned Mr. Clarke on the technical aspects of the plan. Stronger representation against the Great Canadian plan is expected when the hearings resume July 7.

In his Wednesday testimony, Mr. Clarke outlined in general terms the hot water flotation method which Great Canadian proposes to use.

STRONG OPPOSITION TO TAR SANDS PROPOSAL

The mined sands are first mixed with water which acts to break down the lumps of oil sand. Then water at a temperature of 185 degrees fahrenheit is flushed onto the mixture and this separates the oil from the sand. Air pumped into this solution causes the oil to float in a froth to the top of the flotation tank while the sand settles out to the bottom and is removed. After the air and water are removed from the crude it is stated to be thin enough to be moved by the proposed pipe line to market.

During questing, Mr. Clarke remained firm in his contention that the process definitely would work and that the plan was not a promotion. He also told the board that the people of Alberta would be given the opportunity of participating in the capital requirements of the project. He said that this would not only include the initial capital cost, but also the additional $10 million which would be required in the initial stages for working capital.

A series of witnesses were called to testify on behalf of the Great Canadian application on Friday, the third day of the hearings. Appearing on behalf of the purchasers of the crude were W.M. Luthy representing Canadian Oil and D.W. Ferguson, president of Sun Oil.

Both witnesses agreed that the crude from the tar sands could be obtained at a price that might mean a reduction in the price of gasoline for the consumer.

Another Friday witness was Gordon R. Coulson, a Calgary engineer-inventor whose name has long been associated with tar sands research. Mr. Coulson is presently a director of Can-Amera and holds the patent rights on the Coulson process which involves the separation of oil from the sand through the use of centrifugal force.

Mr. Coulson stated that the process developed by himself would result in the removal of much more oil from the sands than would be achieved by the Great Canadian method. In fact, Mr. Coulson said that certain tests conducted using the hot water method revealed it to be a most inefficient separation method. Under questioning, Mr. Coulson stated that the Great Canadian fasco would be a complete waste of money and that it would result in giving any tar sands projects a black eye that would always be remembered by the Canadian public. Mr. Coulson also said that he had reason to disagree with the testimony given by the Great Canadian experts.

One of these was N.R. Adams, technical products division manager of a Chicago firm, Universal Oil Products who was the primary technical consultant for Great Canadian in planning their project. He said that his company was convinced that the project was not only feasible, but that it had to be considered economical as well.

The board has postponed the hearings until July 7.

The gal from the big city was visiting in the country. She remarked to her host, "What a lovely cow! But why doesn't it have horns?"

"Well," the farmer slowly explained, "some cows do not have horns until later in life, others have had them removed and others never have them at all... but this animal doesn't have any because it's a horse!"

AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE ON FEED MILLS.

We heard a great deal of evidence from eleven organizations. The Committee's final report reads as follows:-

(1) The Feeds industry is an integral and essential part of the livestock industry and feed mills perform necessary social and economic services, expansion of which in the Prairie Provinces is desirable in the interests of economical and efficient production of livestock and poultry and the products thereof.

(2) The Feeds industry has grown and aided the general prosperity of local regions under a system of flexibility and the Committee finds that too much inflexibility in the allocation of quotas to feed mills is not in the best interest of either the producer or consumer of grains for feed. We, therefore, recommend that the former practice be continued.

(3) Evidence was presented to the Committee that apparent discrimination exists between agreement and non-agreement mills and the Committee recommends that this situation be studied in order to maintain a fair position between these two types of mills.

Highways

The Honourable Gordon E. Taylor, Minister of Highways, report ed today that progress on highway contracts is well in advance of the point they had reached at the same time last year.

To date, 119 miles of grading have been completed, or 34% of the programme. Last year at the same time, only 95 miles had been completed, which was 27% of the 1959 programme.

On stabilized gravel base course contracts, 67 miles have been completed, or 20% of the programme, as against only 50 miles (19%) at the same time last year.

75 miles of the asphaltic plant mix surface course have been completed to date this year, which is about 29% of the programme; in 1959 only 19% of the programme, of 37 miles, had been completed.

4.34 miles of the concrete work near Calgary has been done this year; less than a half mile of this project remains.

Of the double surface treatment which is designed to act as a dust layer and at the same time to preserve the gravel, in a type of stage construction which can later be incorporated into a heavier road, some 59 miles have been completed to date this year, or about one-third of the programme; last year only 14% of this programme had been completed or about 29 miles.

76 miles of the seal coat work have now been completed, which is about 36% of this year's programme; last year 40% of the seal coat work had been done at this time.

The 1960 season did not start off well but the weather recently has substantially improved. The extra progress made is largely

What's the Use?

by Ruth Hayward

Taken from Good Business, May editioe.

Jim was in deep despair over the state of the world. A builder of houses, his output was nearly at a standstill. "Somehow, I haven't any heart for it," he said. "One bomb could pulverize all I've built in a split second. Why fool myself that I'm building good, comfortable housing for permanence? We'll be back in the cave ages soon enough. I feel like quitting!"

He was speaking before a neighborhood civic meeting. The reason for the gathering of residents and businessmen in the area was to decide on the building of a community center, as a place for children and teen-agers to meet and play, and as a center for adult activities.

With his chin in his hand and a sad smile on his face, Jim went on: "I came here tonight because of pressure from the rest of you, but I haven't anything to contribute. And if any of you stop to think, you'll realise that it's a useless waste of energy and time to build anything for a future we aren't going to have. Bomb shelters would be more appropriate--except that even that kind of building will soon be obsolete and useless!"

Then Sid Hargrove spoke up. The canning company had retired Sid last year, but within two days he had started his own nursery business, continuing his hobby of gardening by selling flowers and plants and furnishing a lawn-care service. "You know, Jim," Sid said, "nearly twenty years ago a doctor told me I couldn't expect to live but a year or so.

"Now I'll admit it was a temptation then to give up, spend the rest of my days griping about my lot and pitying myself. But, I figured, if a fellow hasn't got much time, then he'd better live a lot. So I tried harder at the plant, started a hobby of growing green things, tried to contribute more to the community in volunteer services, and made a real effort to show my family how much I loved them."

Someone asked, "What happened, Sid?"

Sid rubbed his chin, his eyes twinkling. "I don't know. I got so busy living, I guess, that I forgot I was supposed to die eighteen years ago!"

Matt Granger, an attorney, spoke up: "But all of us don't have your courage, Sid. I understand Jim's viewpoint myself. Why should we knock ourselves out? This world's had it!"

Sid pointed a finger at Matt. "So you're quitting your law practice right away?"

"Of course not!" Matt declared, surprised.

"But why work at all?" Sid prodded.

"I've got a family to support and responsibilities to my clients and to creditors."

Sid dug deeper: "But why bother, Matt? If you really believe there is no tomorrow, why not just quit everything? Let your responsibilities go. If there's no future why bother with anything today?"

"But...." Then Matt grinned. "Well, maybe I'm not such a die believer as I thought! When you come right down to it, a man should go on in spite of anything."

Sid nodded. "That's it. See, Jim? That's the whole idea: We should go on living fully, no matter how much of the world's pessimism abounds. But I have faith that, by accepting our roles in history, we'll make it a good, secure future."

Do you know the greatest danger in the world today?

No, it is not the atomic bomb, hydogen-bomb explosions, or radioactive fallout. The greatest danger is despondency....the by-product of faithlessness. Without faith, we rob ourselves of today and tomorrow. What a mockery we make of God when we unwittingly kneel at the false altar of fear.

Few of us are totally immune to despondency. Few of us have faith of such strength and vision that occasionally we do not become fearful. We read dire predictions, discuss things in a dark, negative way, and let the cacophony of modern living deafen us to the Master's promise of triumph:

"Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or anguish, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?

"Nay in all the things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor power, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

In the history of God and mankind over the ages--in all the dark times created by man's greed, faithlessness, and blindness--God has been there to lead man out of the morass of his own making.

Life is His supreme gift. As co-builders with Him, we have a purpose for being here. Will we really live while we are here? Will we contribute something of permanence so that the world will be a better place? Will we be friendly because someone needs our friendship take time to be gentle and patient so that others are thankful for our presence? Will we use our talents to our fullest capacity? Will we savor the wonder fo creation that is ours to enjoy every living moment today? Will we live with this priceless gift of life?

"He giveth power to the faint; and to him that hath no might he increaseth strength. Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall: but they that wait for Jehovah shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint."

His promise is reason enough to live faith-fully. There is always a future, with Him.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING

On July 8th the Drayton Valley Chamber of Commerce held a breakfast meeting in the Cardium Room.

An important item on the agenda for the meeting was relating to the Official Chamber of Commerce Banquet at the time of the official opening of the new Town Hall in Drayton Valley, planned for some time in September. Members of the committee appointed to look after this were H.O. Williamson, D.G. McKenzie, and L. Stevenson. The committee will set the date and will arrange the overall plans for the gala affair.

In the last meeting Mr. D. Hebbard, of Mobil Oil, who is a member of the Pembina Planning Advisory Commission and as such had been appointed to help find a suitable site for Picnic Grounds and Bathing facilities, brought in a report to the last meeting of a very fine spot on the Pembina River west of Speed Corner, where there would be excellent picnicing grounds, bathing and even boating facilities. The meeting discussed the matter further and it was stated that since the Parks Department is ready to make the appropriation to begin work on a park site for this area Chamber members hoped that work could be commenced soon to make the area available this summer.

The matter of a permanent Sports Grounds for Drayton Valley was discussed further. Under consideration is a plot of ground of from thirty to forty acres, not too far from town, that may be set up as a permanent Sports Grounds. Two members of the Chamber of Commerce were appointed to represent the Chamber on the Sports Grounds Committee. They were Mr. H. T. Deby and Mr. C.D. Fuhr. Others groups on the Committee are the Athletic Association and the Town Council.

Mr. Stevenson volunteered to make some inquiries regarding charges for making up a large sign advertising the Town Service clubs and Town Statistics.

A motion was set in order that the Chamber authorize the construction and erection of signs at the entrances to the town to draw the attention of all non-resident Hawkers and Pedlars to report to the Town Office before they do any business in the town.

Chamber member Bernie Von Tettenborn, manager of Crown Lumber Yard, volunteered to construct a float for the Rodeo Parade. Materials are to be paid for by the Chamber, with a limit set on the amount spent.

LEGIONAIRES BALL

By Ken Machan

The final game in the Western Division of the Oilfield Baseball League took place in Drayton Valley on Sunday, July 17th with Legionaires playing host to Genesee. The home town club really had their backs to the wall in this game as a loss would have meant they were out of the playoffs. However, the boys came through in fine style, taking the game by a 6-3 score. This placed D. V. on top of the league with a fine record of 6 wins to 2 losses, an accomplishment to be proud of in their first year of league play. It also necessitates a playoff game between Genesee and Mulhurst, now tied for second place, to decide who meets D. V. in the playoffs.

A highlight of Sunday's game was a terrific home run clout by Wally Wedman, into the bushes on the north side of the diamond. The first home run seen in the ball park this year.

Husky veteran Ken Wallace continued his outstanding performances at bat and wound up the schedule hitting close to the .500 mark. All the team are showing great improvement over their first few games and should certainly make a fine showing in the playoffs.

This report would not be complete without a special vote of thanks to Mel Baxter. Mel has done an outstanding job of umpiring the Legionaire's home games. His fairness in calling the plays, his refusal to be drawn into arguments and his ability to keep the games rolling without any unnecessary delays has been much appreciated by players and spectators alike. Many thanks, Mel, and keep up the good work.

Your baseball reporter will be away on two weeks holiday starting on Saturday, so would urge you now to watch for the announcements of future Legionaire ball games. Even senior ballplayers need the encouragment of their hometown fans to help them play their best. Be a Legionaire booster, they deserve your support.

Lack of detailed information forces this report of the Pony League ballgame on Sunday to be so short. The game, played between Drayton Valley and Red Deer was a 9-9 tie at the end of regulation time but after two extra innings Red Deer came out on top by an 11-9 count.

Two Baptisms were performed by the Reverend Russell Brown of All Saints Anglican Church recently when Craig Leslie, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Lebrik, of Lodgepole was Baptized into the Christian Faith.

The Reverend Brown also Baptized his own infant daughter, Catharine Elizabath, one month old at the time.

Have you ever wondered if a fish goes home and tells about the size of the bait it stole?

These lines are a vital part of our service – the highways along which the power generated on the Bow River reaches homes, farms and industry hundreds of miles away. The Browns are looking at a sub-station at our Ghost hydro plant – one of the hundreds of sub-stations throughout our system which control the voltage that flows through the nearly 4,900 miles of main transmission lines – longer than the Trans Canada Highway from coast to coast. The first transmission lines built by the Company in 1911 served only Cochrane, Exshaw and part of the City of Calgary. Now transmission lines carry electricity to our customers throughout 75,000 square miles of Alberta.

Rodeo

Drayton Valley's Fifth Annual Rodeo proved to be an outstanding success from an entertainment standpoint. The rodeo events had attracted a large number of entries and perfect weather throughout both days of the rodeo aided in bringing out large numbers to see the rodeo events and to participate in the fun at the Midway.

The big event was kicked off at noon Friday with a very excellent parade. A parade that was marked for the unusual amount of time and thought and effort that had gone into making up the floats.

The parade was led by Constables Wilson and Wessell of the local R.C.M.P. force, in full dress uniform, followed by a 14-piece band, from the Jasper Place Lions Club, under the direction of Bandmaster Joe Seiben. Pacing the band were six Majorettes, also from Jasper Place. Two cars followed, with Oldtimers Mrs Ploats and Mrs Jonzon, and Mr Ploats and Mr Ramsted. A horse troop followed, ridden by local riders for the most part, with an Army recruiting van following after. Then came the large collection of decorated bicycle entries by local children, with another group of horse and riders following.

Over thirty float entries, some of them comprised of two or three units, followed. This is the list of floats and the order of the parade: Hudson's Bay, D.V. Library, D.V. Fire Brigade, Helen's Flowers, Oilwives of D.V., D.V. Athletic Association, Oil Well Supply, B.P.O. Elks, Town of Drayton Valley, Russ Greenwood of Sundre Alberta, with his trained buffalo team the Legionettes, Alberta Government Telephones, another horse troop, Mid-Continent, more saddle horses, D.V. Municipal Hospital, Mannix, Du-All Oil Services, Alberta Rathole Drillers, (with 2 units) Dowell Inc., the Bit and Spur Riding Club, Boy Scouts of Canada, British Empire Service League, (Canadian Legion), Lewis Welding, Brown Drilling, Chamber of Commerce, Electrical Contractors (3 units), Flint Rig, Calgary Power, LaTosky Construction, Eskimo Fracturing and Well Servicing, Coin Electric and Halliburton.

Parade Judges were Rotary Club Members, Mr. John MacKenzie, Mr. W. Krause and Rev. A. Wright. They had no easy task with the many very excellent entries in the two divisions, Industrial and Commercial. The same applied to the children's entries, decorated bicycles and so on, with over thirty entered, into each of which much thought and effort had been invested by the children.

Judged winner in the Industrial Class was the "Space Age" float of Dowell, Inc. Second place in this class went to Flint Rig with their Honolulu scene, complete with dancers and leis. Third place went to Du-All Services. In the Industrial Class the entries of Electrical Contractors and of Coin Electric received Honorable Mention. Coin Electric had rigged up two wheels which turned on each side of a light panel truck. In the Commercial Class the Legion Float won first place, the Boy Scout entry was judged second, and the Legionettes float, (complete with the girls playing ball) was given third place, with the float entered by Helen's Flowers, made entirely of fresh flowers, was given Honorable Mention.

A comic note had been inserted among the floats by the two entries of Alberta Rathole Drillers with a rider, complete with saddle and spurs riding the rig, and the statement, "Just an Ol' Core Hand." In the second unit a two-hole Chic Sale carried the statement to the effect that while that kind of holes were not a speciality with them, they were desperate.

The children's entries, which lined up later at the disbanding area at Stewart's Motors, took a lot of consideration, so well had almost all the entries been done, but in the Under-seven-year class little Dougie Snodgrass, aged five, won with his Spaceman get-up. The other four childrens entries selected in the over - seven class for prizes, were, Florence Elliot, with her decorated bicycle, "The Old Gray Mare Ain't What She Used To Be". Linda McMorris, with her "Miss Drayton Valley" entry, Danny Thompson as an Indian and Dale Snodgrass, 7, as a Clown.

Out at Drake Rodeo Grounds the usual fine performances were put on by the cowboys during the big two-day event which drew hundreds of spectators on both days.
